ST. DAVID'S DAY OBSERVED MARCH 1

Time When Welchinen Commemorate Memory of Patron Saint.

A SKETCH OF HIS CAREER.

Interesting Address Delivered a Year Ago in London by Rev. Robert Griffiths.

erhaps not many Salt Lakers, with the exception of Welshmen, are aware of the fact that today is "St. David's day," the day loyal Welshmen commemorate the memory of their patron Considerable can be learned about this day by the following address degyered a year ago in London by Rev. Robert Griffiths:

"I have been asked to say a few words tonight about that famous personage to do honor to whom we have foregathered together here this evening, foregathered together a saint of Wales. St. David, the Patron Saint of Wales. I would much rather speak about 'Dewi Sant in Welsh. In fact, it is somewhat a difficult task to speak about him and his work in any other language; but I his work in any other language; but I am told that there are present here tonight persons who are in the unfortunate position of not being able to understand the Welsh language, consequetly I have been requested to say a few words in English, though I am afraid, were it possible for the old saint to hear me speak of him in such an allen tongue, it would be enough to make him turn in his grave. Let me to hear me speak to him in such an alien tongue, it would be enough to make him turn in his grave. Let me make one fact perfectly clear at the beginning, and that is, 'Dewi Sant' is no myth. I am not sure whether this much could be said of the patron saints of some other countries. I do not wish to wound the susceptibilities of anyone present here tonight, but I will say this, that the question of the existence of some of them appears to me to be, at least, problematical. But as regards 'Dewi Sant,' he certainly did exist in this country at one time, though undoubtedly there is a mass of fables gathered around his personality; but this is only what we are to expect, especially in the case of a person so loved pecially in the case of a person so loved and revered as 'Dewi Sant' was.

SKETCH OF HIS CAREER. "My sim tonight is to try and place before you a brief sketch of his career. I shall not try to discriminate between fact and fiction in this narrative; I will leave the task for each individual to do peave the task for each individual to do for himself; but the whole make up together a portraiture which is both real and poetical. 'Dewl Sant,' we are told by Gerallt, was born at Ty Ddewl (St. David's) in 462. This remote period, 600 years before the Norman conquest, was a period of time at which practically the whole of this country was inhabited the whole of this country was inhabited by the Ceitic race. He was descended on his father's side from Cunedda Wiedg, a noted Welsh prince; and on his mother's side from Gynyr of Gaer Gawch, another rich Welsh prince. He was baptized by Albens, Bishop of Munster, Ireland, who happened to be in this country at that time. As was only natural to expect, we are informed that his birth was foretold by many persons, to some at a time considerably before his birth. His father, we are told, went out hunting one day, and when he came to a certain spot was supernaturally warned off, as he was poaching on the preserves of a 'son not yet born.' St. Patrick also was told to abandon Wales to a greater man than abandon Wales to a greater man than he, who was yet to come, and was sent over to labor in Ireland. I presume that there are some Irishmen listening to me tonight; if so, they can take it from me that their patron saint was at first a Weish monk, and that they are indebted to Wales for the introduction of Christianity into their beloved islandhome. Other instances of this character could be given, but I think these will suffice. 'Dewi Sant' received his clucation at Henlian (Vitus Rebus), Bangor Ilityd, and he also spent 10 years study. Illtyd, and he also spent 10 years study-ing the Scripture at a place called Ty Gwyn ar Do, under a man named Pau-linus, where he had for a fellow student St. Tello, second bishop of Lindaff. After completing its training, he wandered about the country for many years preaching, one of the places visited by alm was Glastonbury, noted for its amous abbey, and it is said that it was Dewi who built the first church there. When he returned to his own country he settled down with his disciples at a place called Rosina. When Dewi and his followers arrived there, we are told that they lit a fire, and that the smoke from it covered the whole country for from it covered the whole country for miles around, which was a sign to them that the land was to be theirs. The king of that district, named Boya, was so incensed at this that he set out to destroy 'Dewi' and his followers, but when he arrived at their encampment he and his men were seized by an illness which made them powerless to harm 'Dewi.' When Boya returned to his home he found all his animals dead; he understood the portent and returned understood the portent and returned and made peace with Dewi and gave him the land. On his arrival home the second time he found that all his ani-mals had been restored to life. His re-moval to St. David's came about in this way, the bishopric of St. David's was vacant, and the princes, noblemen, and people gathered together to select

ONLY "DEWI" QUALIFIED. "What a pity that such a task is not still in force at the selection of bishops, clergy and ministers! It appeared, however, that not one of the candi-dates, with the exception of "Dewi," were able to qualify for the post, and consequently 'Dewi' was selected. One of the early incidents of his stay at St. David was the calling together of a general council of all the churches in the land. The purpose for which this council was called together was to com-bat and destroy the Pelagian heresy. which was beginning to take root in the land. By way of digression allow me to say that I found a very interesting remark about this man Pelagius in my 'Schoff's History of the Church:' Pelagius was a simple monk, born in Britain about the middle of the fourth

I commend this heretical old Welshman to the notice of our chairman, and other Wesleyans that may be here, as the first Wesleyan, and the spiritual progenitor of all modern Methodists. and the spiritual progenitor of all mod-ern Methodists. At this council of Brefi (519 A. D.) 'Dewi Sant' spoke with such learning, power, and elo-quence that Pelagianism was utterly destroyed. Amongst his hearers was Dyfrig, archbishop of Caerlleon ar Wysg, who was so impressed by his ability that he forthwith resigned the archbishopric in favor of Dewi, and archbishopric in favor of Dewi, and himself, old and feeble, retired to Ban-gor Enlli. After attaining to the archgor Enlli. After attaining to the arch-bishopric David removed the see to St. David's. Here he gathered around him many followers. He had 500 disciples, we are told, who were trained by him for the ministry of the church. He labored hard in the interest of the church, and was instrumental in build-ing 56 churches in South Wales alone, besides many others in the surroundbesides many others in the surround-ing counties of England. He also be-came noted as a church organizer; he made ecclesiastical laws, and drew out rules for the monastic life. He spent not only his strength, but also his not only his strength, but also his worldly possessions bestowed on him by his grandfather Gynyr, for the spreading of the gospel throughout the land. He died in 544 at the advanced age of 82.

REMEMBERED NATIONALITY. "In 1120 he was canonized by Pope Calixtus. He has left us Welshmen an abiding example of a life passionately devoted to the welfare of his fellow-countrymen. He was constrained by a two-fold love, a love for his Master Christ Jesus and an over-powering love for his native land."

Dr. Williams then rose amidst loud applause, and said it was yery difficult to make good speeches fir Flint, as there were so few opportunities of practising, and it would be a Treat blessing if they could come together to practise after-dinner speaking. He was very pleased they as Weishmen had come together to commemorate St. David, and thereby acknowledge their nationality to a very great extent. He David, and thereby acknowledge their nationality to a very great extent. He did not deny his nationality, and it would be a sorry day for the people of Wales when they forgot their nationality. He was glad they had come together to hear the history of St. David. The best history he had ever read of St. David was in the Catholic Truth Society's pamphlet. The lesson of St. David's life was "to be true to himself and to his nation." He asked them to give every support to the Liberal cause and the principles that had done so much for their country (ap-

Council Will Consider Matter of Appropriating Additional Money.

An adjourned meeting of the city council will be held tonight at 7:30 o'clock, at which the matter of authorizing the expenditure of $75,000 in extra work on the Big Cottonwood conduit as recommended by the city engineer will be considered. Whether or duit as recommended by the city engineer will be considered. Whether or not the full sum asked will be authorized is a question of some doubt as a number of the councilmen who visited the conduit on Tuesday are of the opinion that some of the extra work contemplated will not be necessary and they will strongly oppose such an exorbitant waste of money on extres.

It is believed that a majority of the members of the council who visited the conduit on the last trip are in favor of covering the conduit with dirt as recommended and also favor changing the line of the conduit in some places in order to avoid a number of curves and wrong in using his example as a justification for your own misconduct. Your poor frail mother sitting there needs your care and protection, and you should have manhood enough in you to stand by her, and not add to her sorrows. Inasmuch as you cannot live in peace at home and it is the desire of both your purents that you go eisewhere, I shall suspend sentence in your case upon your promise that you will leave your family in peace so far as you are concerned, and that you will behave yourself."

Such was the advice given by Judge C. B. Diehl yesterday afternoon to Ray Wright, after the latter had peaded guity to a charge of assault and battery committed upon the person of his father, isaac Wright. The testimony and explanations in the case were conflicting, and tended to show a sad state of affairs in the household, a tendency to drink on the part of both father and son being at the bottom of much misery and unhappiness. The preliminary hearing of Stephen Olds, James Moore, Frank Evans and Frank Gerrad, accused of robbing W. S. Henderson, a railroad brakeman, or a watch and cravat pin, was concluded in the criminal division of the city court yes terday afternoon, and resulted in the defendants being held to answer to the district court. The ball was fixed at $500 in each case, and as neither was able to furnish honds, they were returned to the county jail to await the action of the higher court.

Olds and Moore have yet another charge hanging over them, that of having held up, with intent to reb. Frank Tomlinson, bartender in the saloon of Del Wilson.

Everything Seems to be Subordniated to the Railway Measure.

Special Correspondence.

Washington, Feb. 24.-Everything is subordinated to the railroad rate legislation. Interest in other measures cannot be maintained while so much doubt exists as to what will be the final outcome of the contest that is now on between the conservative and radical elements. Every senator is deeply interested, and for two weeks past discussion of the various railroad measures has been heard everywhere. If there is a group of senators in earnest conversation it may be set down as a matter of fact that they are talking about railroad legislation; if there is a conference at the White House the sure guess is that the railroad rate bill is the most interesting topic of conversation. It has permeated the social and business atmosphere of the capital; it is the overshadowing subject before Con-

WANT THE PRESIDENT TO DE-CIDE.

Despite the fact that complaint has been made that there is too much exexcutive influence exerted in legislation there has been an effort on the part of both factions for a declaration from the president. There does not seem to be any doubt that if the president desired he could write the language of the rate bill and that it would be adopted. If he should say, "This what I think is right," the opposition would fade. But for a week past there has been much doubt as to just what the president favors. Outside of a general declara-tion of his position in favor of govern-ment control of rates there has been no official declaration. There is no one official declaration. There is no who feels authorized to say what president favors—that is, in exact language, and language becomes important in a bill of such momentous importance to the business world.

SUBSIDIES ARE GENERAL.

"We are subsidizing constantly," said "We are subsidizing constantly," said Senator Hale in support of the shipping bill. We do it in a magnificent way for irrigation, and I am glad, as an eastern man, to join in the munificent gifts that we take from the treasury for the great and beneficent scheme of irrigation in the west."

"I want to suggest," said Senator Warren of Wyoming, "that the munificent sum that is being applied to irrigation is to be returned to the treasury." and I am glad, as an eastern man, to

"I have made you solid in four states." remarked Senator Bacon to Vice President Fairbanks the day the delegates from the woman's suffrage convention had a hearing in the marble room of the senate. And this is what the Georgia senator meant:

It seems that at the close of the hearing the lady in charge thanked Bacon for his courtesy in granting the women the use of the marble room of the senate, as it allowed so many of them to participate in the proceedings. "You owe me no thanks," Senator Bacon told the ladies. "You are indebted to Vice President Fairbanks for the courtesy. NEW HYMN BOOK AND PSALMODY.

A new edition of the L. D. S. Hymn Book (the twenty-fourth), revised un-der the direction of the Church Au-thorities, has just been issued by the thorities, has just been issued by the Deseret News. Many improvements will be observed. The names of the authors, as far as they could be agertained, have been appended to each hymn. Special type was selected for the edition, to secure a large, plain and bold print, without increasing the size of the book. Thirteen new selected hymns have been added to the collection, among which are "Onward, Christion Soldier," "Peace Be Still," "Rock of Ages," "Abide With Me," the two National anthems, "America" and "The Star Spangled Banner," and several others.

NEW PSALMODY.

A new edition of the L. D. S. Psalmody has been issued to correspond with the revised Hymn Book, it also contains the music for the additional thirteen hymns. New plates have been made throughout. The book, though enlarged in its number of pages, has been somewhat reduced in form, making it more convenient for choir use. The price has also been reduced in the various binds, as follows: Cloth, $1.25; half leather, $1.50; limp leather, $1.75; and full morecco gilt, $2.50. Both Hymn Book and Psalmody are now ready at the Deseret News Book Store.
